

ALEXANDRE - La ville morte

(Greek National Opera & Catapult Opera, 2024)

"As Alexander, Jorell Williams' lustrous baritone and abundant acting chops provided the opera's only bit of levity. His commanding presence contributed to a sorely needed sense of place." - Schmpoera

"Alexandre was portrayed by baritone Jorell Williams, a fine singing actor with a compelling stage presence..." - VAN Magazine

"The resonant American baritone Jorell Williams, as Alexandre, completed this talented lineup." - Reaction

"The cast was well calibrated, with persuasive performances from the four principals... Jorell Williams effectively conveyed the unsavory bullying of the older man." - Classical Voice North America

"The four singers Melissa Harvey (Hébé), Laurie Rubin (Anne), Joshua Dennis (Léonard) and Jorell Williams (Alexandre) worked together flawlessly, offering musically idiosyncratic readings of their parts and were very convincing in bringing to the surface the special characteristics and unusual emotions of the mentally troubled heroes..." - Critic's Point

"Baritone Jorell Williams (Alexandre) ... portrayed [his] role very well from a theatrical perspective." - Athinorama

"It takes all the conviction of the performers to transport us into the world of this 'dead city'..." - Opéra Magazine

"provided some much-needed levity—and cringe—in his confession to Hébé." - Ear Relevant
